RE: Support for LCRA Request in TCEQ Docket No. 2015-0817-WR

TCEQ Commission Office
12100 Park 35 Circle
Room 201S, Building E
Austin, TX

Dear TCEQ:

The purpose of my letter is to express support for the LCRA's request that TCEQ suspend any obligation that LCRA has to release interruptible stored water to any landowners or customers within the Gulf Coast, Lakeside, or Pierce Ranch irrigation operations, including those who might seek to use stored water for irrigating rice that has to date been watered with groundwater, or for any other purposes such as row crops, pasture, or wildlife management. I agree with the LCRA that such continued relief is necessary in light of the prolonged and uncertain duration of the ongoing exceptional drought emergency that grips the lower Colorado River basin notwithstanding the recent rains.

On June 16, 2015, the combined storage in Lakes Travis and Buchanan was 68% full. I have a residence on Lake Travis in the Spicewood area. I recall that when the lake came up at the start of the drought (~ 2010), there was a release of water for the interruptible customers that dropped the water level below 50% and it has never recovered until these recent rains. I agree with LCRA that it is premature to consider the drought over and we need to see what conditions will be later this year and whether Lake Travis will be able to maintain its level and if river inflows to the Lake will be sufficient. As noted in the LCRA report, the years 2011, 2013 and 2014 are the three lowest inflow years on record. We will probably not know for many months or years if this drought is over.

Thank you for your attention to this matter.

Thomas Clark

Comments:

I hope this is the correct section. Please continue to limit water released from Mansfield Dam to the rice farmers. Please consider the greater good of the population.
I disagree withe sending the massive amounts of water to the rice farmers.
If this is the incorrect area please forward to the correct entity within tceq.

To the LCRA
I have long felt that water has been misused by those down stream of Austin Rice farming in Texas is not a wise use of water!
Austin is growing and the close to a million residents of the area needs should be considered .
It is not just having water to drink but having a recreational area where family's can commune with nature. Times are changing and farmers can shift to crops that are more environmentally responsible. But it takes responsible leadership to see beyond special interests desires.
Rice grown in Texas is the most expensive in any supermarket and I can not see how it a viable crop if they had to be competitive without all the subsidizes I also think Ducks should have safe nesting and feeding areas but not so hunters can shoot them .
Thanks for looking beyond the way things were to see what things could be.
Sincerely,
Douglas Miller

To Whom it May Concern,

We have had a reprieve of grace this year.
I hope before we make decisions that we take into account the changing conditions.
I hope this summer is not an anomaly, but I fear it is so.
Please make the decisions for the greater good.

In my humble opinion, rice farming is not the wisest crop in Texas anymore.
And duck hunting may be a luxury that we cannot afford now.

Thank you for your concern,

Kathleen Low

Please don't release water from Lake Travis. The water should stay in Lake Travis. Buchanan is only 51%! Please don't repeat the mistakes of the past. Consider what makes the most sense to do with the wonderful rain water that we have been blessed to receive.

Comments:

I'm not sure which ruling this comment should go to. Do please send it to the right person. Please don't drain our lakes. We need the water for tourism, recreation, and the natural beauty the provide. The rice farmers need to find another way to water their crops. The lakes bring many benefits to thousands of people and loads of animals. Don't destroy a thing of beauty so people can make some money. It's not worth it.

COMMENTS: "I support a continuation of the Emergency Order issued by the Executive Director (ED) on June 17, 2015, pursuant to Tex. Water Code § 11.139, to the Lower Colorado River Authority (LCRA) to amend its 2010 Water Management Plan (WMP), Permit No. 5838." Much like the growth of the Lake Travis area, which has changed (exploded) in recent years so should the handling of something so Important to our local economy. It isn't about denying those downstream. It's about finding a balance. What was once built as a reservoir now has much more surrounding it with many more demands on it! Please do not release our water downstream to subsidized farmers with big pocket books. You are hurting small business owners who employee thousands from the area. This article states that the area's financial output has overtaken what the farmers put back in: http://stateimpact.npr.org/texas/2012/04/16/rice-farmers-used-more-than-three-times-as-much-water-as-austin-last-year/ So the farmers are getting our water for pennies, government money, and putting less into the economy than the small businesses being hurt by low lakes!!! Please consider all sides, not just the well funded ones! It is madness to consider releasing water from Lake Travis downstream when the drought is NOT over! One week of rain to semi-restore the lake to average levels could be followed by another three years of NO rain! Please think ahead, farther ahead the ONE RICE CROP! THE REGIONS K PLAN MUST: • Must include impact of low reservoir levels on economy and on public health and safety. • Must include water pricing and how it affects conservation and water management strategies. • Must review available water supplies to determine whether these supplies are adequate for current and future demands. • All water users must have ways to assess the success of their conservation efforts and enforce conservation. • Plan must emphasize drought planning for all water users. • Revenue from water sales should cover the expenses of providing water. • Water management strategies must include developing new water supplies based on new technology and sustainable methods. Please let Region K know your concerns. Your voice makes a difference!!

COMMENTS: "I support a continuation of the Emergency Order issued by the Executive Director (ED) on June 17, 2015, pursuant to Tex. Water Code § 11.139, to the Lower Colorado River Authority (LCRA) to amend its 2010 Water Management Plan (WMP), Permit No. 5838." Much like the growth of the Lake Travis area, which has changed (exploded) in recent years so should the handling of something so Important to our local economy. It isn't about denying those downstream. It's about finding a balance. What was once built as a reservoir now has much more surrounding it with many more demands on it! Please do not release our water downstream to subsidized farmers with big pocket books. You are hurting small business owners who employee thousands from the area. This article states that the area's financial output has overtaken what the farmers put back in: http://stateimpact.npr.org/texas/2012/04/16/rice-farmers-used-more-than-three-times-as-much-water-as-austin-last-year/ So the farmers are getting our water for pennies, government money, and putting less into the economy than the small businesses being hurt by low lakes!!! Please consider all sides, not just the well funded ones! It is madness to consider releasing water from Lake Travis downstream when the drought is NOT over! One week of rain to semi-restore the lake to average levels could be followed by another three years of NO rain! Please think ahead, farther ahead the ONE RICE CROP!

COMMENTS: DO NOT RELEASE water. Travis County has suffered enough, the community, businesses, real estate market, decline of visitors, etc. Releasing water is an injustice to Travis County residents including the wildlife. Why would you sell water at one tenth of the price you sell it to residents of Austin if you are going to release water? The fund of two billion was created to build new water projects, why don't the rice farmers build their own reservoir downstream? Releasing water is a travesty and is wrong.

COMMENTS: Please take into account the fact that many businesses were forced to shut down due to the last round of releases down stream. Just because we've had a few rounds of storms means in no way are we going to receive more to make up for any water sent downstream today. Do not let the economic misfortunes of a few dictate future economic misfortune for entire communities and persons who are tied into the highland lakes.

Sincerely, A former patron of: Austin Aqua Sports (closed due to drought), Oak Hill SCUBA, Carlos and Charlies, and Volunteer dive coordinator for Lake Travis Underwater Cleanup

COMMENTS: Based solely on our past and growing water needs in the Austin area I think providing water to rice farmers south and near the coast is absurd. Base on rain totals with these same southern counties the need wouldn't be considered as important to these same crops as it would be to the growing need of the Austin and southern cities. You have recently added a water treatment plant on the south side of the lake to accommodate the growth of the Austin area without any regards for the current well owners in Travis and surrounding counties.

COMMENTS: This better be a joke. Lake Travis isn't even full and they are thinking about flooding rice fields, from the Hill Country, that is only 6 weeks removed from the worst drought Central Texas has ever experienced. Give the farmers land around Houston, where they don't know what to do with all their rain or build a reservoir east of Austin so we can stop wasting all rain water east of Hwy 620. I have no idea what happened to all the excess rain water that was east of Lake Travis but if that wasn't at least somewhat captured by the Rice Farmers or the LCRA then this system is completely dysfunctional. I'm sure this was a great plan in 1937 when Austins population was 70,000 but last I checked there is over 1,500,000 people with straws in our most precious resource that we can't afford to be wasting on rice fields that can't get their water naturally.

COMMENTS: I support a continuation of the Emergency Order issued by the Executive Director (ED) on June 17, 2015, pursuant to Tex. Water Code § 11.139, to the Lower Colorado River Authority (LCRA) to amend its 2010 Water Management Plan (WMP), Permit No. 5838. The current inequitable means of providing water to downstream rice farmers at the expense of citizens in Travis County with no other water alternatives is poor overall water management at its best, and despicable ethically at it worst. Excessive conservation is simply not working and it is time to renegotiate a permanent solution to the water management state-wide that allows a fair price for some water allowances downstream when supply is in excess. To that point, when it is sold, it should be for a fair amount to all involved, not subsidized by the citizens of Travis County. As a native coastal Texan it is baffling that desalination is STILL not under consideration.

COMMENTS: Lake Travis is vital to the North Shore side e.i. Jonestown, Lago Vista and the surrounding communities. Please keep Lake Travis as full as possible. To see it nearly full for the first time in nearly 7 years was a sight for sore eyes and brought a tears to them. It is my home, it effects our way of life here. Please find another way to help the rice farmers and others that "depend" on Lake Travis. Don't open the flood gates.

TEXAS COMMISSION ON ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY
2015 JUN 29 PM 1:32
CHIEF CLERKS OFFICE

The drought and utter mismanagement of our natural resources is killing us financially and hurting the environment.

Published in the North Lake Travis Log
August 20, 2009 Page 4A OPINION section

By Lonnie Moore, Vice President, Protect Lake Travis Association

An argument for the TCEQ 'no-discharge' rule

There is nothing like a long, serious drought to make us really appreciate the wonderful asset that is Lake Travis. And while we all worry about when the rains and water will return, there is one thing we have not had to worry about in a very long time – the threat of pollution in the form of sewage effluent discharged into Lake Travis and upstream.

In the early 1980's, the State of Texas implemented a series of rules restricting discharge of sewage effluent into the six Highland Lakes. The Protect Lake Travis Association was involved in getting these rules passed by bringing public and government attention to the negative effects of effluent discharges into natural bodies of water.

Recently a number of wastewater service providers have begun a petition and a public relations campaign to persuade the Texas Commission on Environmental Quality that the current restrictions on discharging sewage effluent should be relaxed or eliminated. As part of their campaign, they argue that: 1) sewage effluent discharges would improve the lake levels, 2) that wastewater treatment processes have improved so that effluent discharges would not be harmful, and 3) that land-based disposal of effluent is both costly and wasteful.

PLTA adamantly rejects the premise of the petitioners that the current rules restricting sewage effluent discharge into our lakes should be changed. These rules have been fundamental to keeping our Highland Lakes, including Lake Travis, as clean and healthy as they are today. There are better solutions to dealing with the byproducts of sewage treatment than discharging them into the lakes that we depend on for safe drinking water supply, recreation, tourism and quality of life.

It is not possible in this small space to explain all of the negative effects of discharging effluent into our lakes or to detail the many technical, operational and cost issues involved in trying to consistently achieve and guarantee a truly "safe" quality of effluent. We would rather use this opportunity to point out a better way and offer to help.

Done correctly, land-based irrigation with treated effluent is a beneficial reuse that reduces the amount of water needed to be drawn from the Highland Lakes. Coupled with water conservation, this beneficial reuse of the water supply is the best way to have a positive effect on lake levels and is much more environment-friendly than direct discharge of effluent. A large number of entities are already doing this, including Lakeway MUD, and more are beginning to do so throughout the country.

We are not talking about "irrigating cedar trees", the example often given by the petitioners. That is a indeed a safe but wasteful disposal method and we should be moving beyond it to using effluent in lieu of potable water for commercial and residential landscapes, crops and even industrial uses. PLTA is aware that changes in regulations and changes in public perception would aid the transition to widespread beneficial reuse of effluent. We would like to help any MUD or city to pursue this option, while continuing to strongly oppose any attempt to allow effluent discharge into our precious lakes.

COMMENTS: Tens, if not hundreds of thousands of Texas citizens now rely on Lake Travis and other Highland lakes for water. Regardless of whatever agreement agricultural groups (i.e. rice farmers) have made with the LCRA in the past, ecological sustainability and our right to clean, affordable and sustainable water takes precedence over an unnatural and unsustainable economic practice like rice farming. Although we experienced unprecedented rains these past few weeks, that does not detract from the brutal reality the water crisis Central Texas citizens have faced these past 5 years. Let California be the lesson we all need to witness. Their draught, coupled with their commercial-first water policies and corrupt consumption practices, have crippled the ecological state of many areas in that state. Many of those areas have not recovered as of yet, and it is uncertain if they will. Again, I urge everyone in this area to voice their concern and opposition over the current distribution tactics of our water supply. LCRA needs stronger governorship and needs to be accountable to us, not to the commercial groups currently controlling their decisions.

We aren't even 1 month into having Travis partially filled and the ag downstream is already asking for water. Lake Buchanan isn't close to 75% yet. Please do not send water downstream.

COMMENTS: Please do not send water out of Lake Travis! Our businesses and properties have suffered for years! We are still in Stage 2 Drought status. The Highland lakes are not full, and if you take from Lake Travis there may not be water to sustain us. Save our businesses and property! Save our lake!

COMMENTS: Gentlemen: I am contacting you regarding the hearing set for July 1, 2015 at the TCEQ office in Austin. I strongly oppose the possibility of reversing the TCEQ emergency order which allows the LCRA to hold water back in Lake Travis. For God's sake, let the lakes re-fill. We need to replenish our water resource in these lakes. I own property in Houston and on Lake Travis. I drive back and forth on a regular basis. From what

I see, there is plenty of run off rain water in the lower Colorado river. Let the farmers take this water and reservoir it for irrigation. Regards, Kirk Lazarine

COMMENTS: I support the continuation of the emergency order cutting off the release of Lake Travis water to downstream farmers. I am sorry for their business situation, but one weather event does not end a drought. And, the number of people affected by low lake levels is far greater than the number affected by this old agreement on agricultural water use. I hope that recent rains do signal the end of the drought, but we are NOT out of the woods yet. Please proceed with caution. And, please remember the last 5 years.

COMMENTS: Wrperm 5838. Docket 2015-0817-wr Please do not let our water out at this time. The rice farmers have had more rain than our area has & has even had a hurricane pass through within the last few weeks. We need to conserve our water at this time. If they need water at a later date this summer because of the extreme heat we are having then yes let out some water. It is beyond me why they think they need the water at this time. Lake Buchanan is not at a safe level to let any water out. If Buchanan was full or at least 90% full then ok. I live on the lake. It has been a ghost town around here and now there is life & business are thriving. Keep our water!!!

COMMENTS: I strongly discourage the release of water from the Highland Lakes, specifically, Lake Travis, for farmers and hunters in the Gulf Coast. Lake Travis is a vital resource for the Hill Country and a growing Central Texas population looks to the Lakes as their primary source of drinking water. While there may be a seasonal need for water in the Gulf Coast related to farming, that seasonal need has passed with the planting season. Regarding hunting, this is in essence a recreational activity and there are far fewer hunters than there are water fowl hunters. There is a much higher need for water in the Hill country for drinking and/or recreation, than there is a need for the same resource in the Gulf Coast.

The fact that Lake Travis levels have risen in recent months does not mean the drought is over. It only makes sense to maintain maximum water levels in Lake Travis. The last releases of water are part of the reason for the disastrous condition of the lake for the last few years. Thanks for your consideration.

COMMENTS: We are still under our normal lake levels, even after all of the rain. Please DO NOT release what is rightfully ours with our drinking water and the Lake Travis we so love and enjoy. The rice farmers need to acquire a different water source as with the drought we are still in will not suffice to keep supplying them with our Lake Travis water. I beg that no other water be released down stream for rice farming.

COMMENTS: I support a continuance of the emergency order issued by the Executive director on June 17 2015 pursuant to TX.water code 11.139 to the LCRA to amend it's 2010 Water Management Plan Permit #5838 It is simply wrong to use the drinking water supply for all of Central Texas to flood the rice fields for the profits of a small group of privately owned farms, It is time to end this wasting of our precious water supply. The drought conditions and weather patterns will continue to dry out this part of the State and if this emergency order is not continued It will be the same problem as we have gone through in the past 10 years with rainfall amounts much much lower than when these releases were agreed to many years ago We thank the Rice Farming industry in Texas for helping to establish the Highland Lakes in the beginning but our water is too important for this to continue any longer Please don't let this small group of Farmers use the people of Texas water for their personal benefit at the cost of our most precious resource COMMENTS: Pls approve the continuation of the Emergency Order issued by the Executive Director (ED) on June 17, 2015, pursuant to Tex. Water Code § 11.139, to the Lower Colorado River Authority (LCRA) to amend its 2010 Water Management Plan (WMP), Permit No. 5838." The 2010 WMP is not a good plan, and does not promote conservation, or equitable water use.

COMMENTS: Good Afternoon, Don't make the same mistake made in 2011 when 50% of Lake Travis was sold downstream in the midst of our state's worst drought on record! You must employ balanced and fair management of central Texas' water resources. We all understand that Lake Travis was built originally to serve as a flood control reservoir. Clearly we can all agree that much has changed since the 40's. The strain on our water supply from the growing population as well as the undeniable detrimental economic impact (as documented in a reputable economic impact study several years ago) has to be fully considered. Please do not release our water downstream to subsidized farmers. You are putting small business owners out of business (Café Blue, Johnny Fin's, Carlos 'n Charlies, Hurst Harbor). Mandate the agriculture industry in the Houston and coastal bend area to construct off channel storage and retention tanks that they can use to irrigate from during times when water cannot be sensibly released from the highland lakes. It's common knowledge now that rice farmers receive highland lakes water at a fractional cost and yet are still subsidized with government money. This is NOT fair or balanced. I implore you to fairly consider all sides of this issue!

TCEQ DOCKET NO. 2015-0817-WR

APPLICATION OF THE LOWER COLORADO RIVER AUTHORITY FOR EMERGENCY AUTHORIZATION	§ § § §	BEFORE THE TEXAS COMMISSION ON ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY

REQUEST TO MODIFY THE LCRA EMERGENCY ORDER OF THE EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

TO THE HONORABLE TEXAS COMMISSION ON ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY:

NOW COME Garwood Irrigation Company ("Garwood") and the Lehrer/Lewis interests[1] ("Lehrer/Lewis") and submit these comments asking the Commission to consider modifications to the Lower Colorado River Authority ("LCRA") Emergency Order of the Executive Director ("ED") ("the June 2015 Emergency Order"). Neither LCRA nor the ED opposes the modifications requested by these comments. The additions proposed here are virtually identical to the additions requested by Garwood and Lehrer/Lewis for LCRA's previous emergency orders; those same additions were incorporated by the Commission in each prior LCRA emergency order.[2]

[1] The Lehrer/Lewis interests consist of five distinct ownership interests of lands within the Service Area of LCRA's Garwood Division: (1) The William Paul Lehrer Residuary Trust, the Gretchen L. McMenimen Residuary Trust, the Nancy Lehrer Boyd Residuary Trust, and the Mary Lehrer Armour Residuary Trust (such residuary trusts were created under the will of William Neal Lehrer admitted to probate in Cause No. 9,227 in the County Court of Colorado County, Texas, and such residuary trusts are together referred to herein as the "Lehrer Trusts"); (2) The Dorothy Lewis Estate Trust (such trust was created under the Last Will and Testament of Dorothy Jane Lehrer Lewis dated October 3, 1983 and First Codicil dated February 12, 2002, and such trust is referred to herein as the "Lewis Trust"); (3) El Seven Ranch, Inc., a Texas corporation; (4) the Lehrer-Lewis 1967 Trusts; and (5) the Lehrer-Lewis Joint Venture. William Neal Lehrer and Dorothy Jane Lehrer Lewis, both deceased, were brother and sister, and their descendants/heirs are the beneficiaries of the Lehrer Trusts, the Lewis Trust, and the Lehrer-Lewis 1967 Trusts, as well as stockholders of El Seven Ranch, Inc.

[2] See FOF 77, COL 11, and Ordering Provision 2 of the February 27, 2014 "Order affirming in part and modifying in part the Executive Director's emergency order authorizing the Lower Colorado River Authority to amend its Water Management Plan, Permit No. 5838, pursuant to section 11.139 of the Texas Water Code; TCEQ Docket No. 2014-0124-WR; SOAH Docket No. 582-14-2123," and FOF 70, COL 4, and Ordering Provision 2 of the March 24, 2015 "Order affirming, with modification, an Emergency Order granted by the Executive Director to the Lower Colorado that were included in the River Authority emending the 2010 Water Management Plan; TCEQ Docket No. 2015-0220-WR."

BACKGROUND

Garwood owned the independent right to divert and use 168,000 acre-feet of water per year from the run-of-river flow of the Colorado River for the irrigation of 32,000 acres annually within Colorado and Wharton Counties. Garwood's water right had the earliest priority date of all major water rights in the Colorado River Basin. In 1998, Garwood sold to LCRA its major assets (the Garwood canal system, low water dam on the Colorado River, various lift stations and the major portion of its water right) under a Purchase Agreement dated July 20, 1998 (the "1998 Purchase Agreement"). But Garwood conditioned the transaction on LCRA making numerous conditions and promises—mostly those set forth in Section 7.08 of the 1998 Purchase Agreement—for the long-term protection of all landowners and irrigators within the Garwood Irrigation service area (now referred to as LCRA's "Garwood Irrigation Division" service area). All landowners and irrigators within the service area are explicitly named in the 1998 Purchase Agreement as third-party beneficiaries who have the right to enforce the conditions and promises made by LCRA. One of those conditions is that the terms and conditions of the Agreement between LCRA and Garwood dated December 10, 1987 (the "1987 Agreement") shall remain in effect (collectively, the "Garwood Agreements").

LCRA on the one hand, and Garwood and Lehrer/Lewis on the other hand, have a difference of opinion regarding construction of the Garwood Agreements. Garwood and Lehrer/Lewis are not asking or expecting the Commission to construe the Garwood Agreements. The Executive Director's staff has not previously reviewed or construed the Garwood Agreements when issuing LCRA emergency relief. Unfortunately, though, the pending consideration of the Executive Director's June 2015 Emergency Order, which deals generically with LCRA water supply contracts and issues of firm water and interruptible commitments, has the potential to interfere with the parties' resolution of the contract disputes, an interference neither side seeks.[3] Garwood and Lehrer/Lewis agree that the law is clear,[4] but, out of caution, and consistent with the February 2014 and March 2015 Emergency Orders approved by the Commission, Garwood and Lehrer/Lewis ask that any order entered by the Commission that affirms or modifies the Executive Director's June 2015 Emergency Order reflect that, by entering the order, the Commission is not intending to construe the Garwood Agreements. By incorporating the provisions that the Commission added to the March 2015 Emergency Order into the ED's June 2015 Emergency Order, it would be indisputable that the Commission is neutral with respect to any contract issues in dispute between LCRA and Garwood and Lehrer/Lewis.

REQUESTED RELIEF

The clarification and neutrality Garwood and Lehrer/Lewis seek can be accomplished by adding to the June 2015 Emergency Order virtually the same finding of fact, conclusion of law and ordering provision added by the Commission to the March 2015 Emergency Order. The provisions are nearly identical to Finding of Fact 70 (in the "Relief Requested" section), Conclusion of Law 4, and Ordering Provision 2 that the Commission included in the March 2015 Emergency Order, but the following proposed provisions are renumbered to match the current

[3] The March 2015 Emergency Order included a provision stating that "LCRA would provide interruptible stored water to the Garwood Irrigation Division and Pierce Ranch, to the extent required by their contracts." March 2015 Emergency Order FOF 70. While Garwood and Lehrer/Lewis propose to remove reference to Pierce Ranch to refer to Garwood alone, this is otherwise exactly the finding that Garwood and Lehrer/Lewis propose to include in the June 2015 Emergency Order.

[4] Garwood and Lehrer/Lewis are aware of no express grant of authority to the Commission to interpret contracts between private parties. Unlike courts, "there is no presumption that administrative agencies are authorized to resolve disputes. Rather, they may exercise only those powers the law, in clear and express statutory language, confers upon them." Subaru of Am., Inc. v. David McDavid Nissan, Inc., 84 S.W.3d 212, 220 (Tex. 2002). Moreover, contractual interpretation is "inherently judicial in nature." In re Cano Petroleum, Inc., 277 S.W. 3d 470 (Tex. App.—Amarillo 2009, no pet.). When an action is inherently judicial, a court "retains jurisdiction to determine the controversy" in the absence of an explicit statute granting exclusive jurisdiction to the administrative agency. Id.

order and remove all references to Pierce Ranch (because it is included in other terms of the Order) to address Garwood alone:

> Proposed Finding of Fact 77
> LCRA's request notes that LCRA would provide interruptible stored water to the Garwood Irrigation Division to the extent required by its contracts.
> Proposed Conclusion of Law 4
> By entering this order, the Commission is not construing in any way either the 1987 Agreement or the 1998 Purchase Agreement between LCRA and Garwood Irrigation Company. Nothing in this Order shall be considered or construed in any way to support one construction or another of the 1987 Agreement and the 1998 Purchase Agreement between LCRA and Garwood Irrigation Company.
> Proposed Ordering Provision 2
> LCRA may provide interruptible stored water to the Garwood Irrigation Division to the extent required by its contracts.

CONCLUSION

Garwood and Lehrer/Lewis ask the Commission to confirm, once again and in any future LCRA emergency order that it may consider and issue, that it does not intend through its actions related to this or any LCRA emergency order to interpret the Garwood Agreements. Should the Commission decide to affirm or modify the Executive Director's June 2015 Emergency Order, Garwood and Lehrer/Lewis respectfully request that the Commission incorporate the finding of fact, conclusion of law and ordering provisions recited above into the latest LCRA emergency order.

Re: TCEQ Docket No. 2015-0817-WR
Permit No. 5838

These are my comments on the Fourth Consecutive Emergency Order (EO) being considered by the TCEQ upon application by the Lower Colorado River Authority (LCRA).

Since drought conditions have existed since 2012 actions to conserve waters in the LCRA Reservoirs have warranted consideration. However current conditions with the LCRA Reservoirs at about 70% full (1,415,787 AF), and rising, would indicate that the emergency conditions that are cited to justify invoking the total curtailment are not warranted.

What imminent threat to Public "Health and Safety" can be cited to justify curtailing waters that may be beneficially used? Because the previous EO essentially blocked timely planting of the rice crop for 2015, the cutoff is a moot point, so that affirming the Executive Director's order would have little, if any, effect on reservoir drawdown. Consequently my concern is to the precedent being perpetuated by this Fourth Consecutive proposed EO Action. Not withstanding the disclaimer that the order "... is not meant as precedent ... for future emergency relief.", The approval of another EO in light of the substantial supply currently in storage does raise my anxiety level that EO's will continue to be institutionally imposed in future years.

In addressing possible water shortages by edict, that will deprive an historic water rights beneficiary, will discourage actions that could provide future benefits to other water users.

Comments on TCEQ Docket No. 2015-0817-WR, Permit No. 5838
Provided by the Colorado Water Issues Committee

July 29, 2015

~~It is CWIC's position that this emergency order may not meet the standard of demonstrating an~~ imminent threat to human health and safety under Section 11.139, however we remain officially neutral on the order. We had been hopeful that such relief could have be handled without the need to invoke the provisions of 11.139. There are unique conditions, however, that demonstrate the imprudence of delivering interruptible irrigation water from storage for the remainder of this crop season. These include:

1. The canal systems at Lakeside and Gulf Coast are in ill repair and the time, manpower and equipment needed to rectify this situation cannot be brought to bear in a fashion timely enough to provide near-term operations.
2. The revised Water Management Plan (WMP) is still pending at TCEQ and reversion to the outdated 2010 plan may not be appropriate at this time. Thus there is the need to bridge the gap between now and when the new plan can be put in play hopefully later this year.
3. By preserving the maximum water in storage in what remains of 2015, conditions will be maximized for the availability of interruptible stored water for crop year 2016.

Should storage remain at the high level we see it at now and the new WMP not be in play for 2016, the CWIC will vigorously oppose this type of broad, far-reaching emergency relief for the 2016 crop year. We will expect delivery of irrigation water under the terms of either the 2010 plan or under an emergency order that utilizes the terms of the new revision to the plan even if it has not been adopted by TCEQ.

CWIC wishes to highlight a few things that this emergency should not do:

1) It should not set a precedent for the LCRA in seeking or being granted future such relief at any storage level that has been foreseen and planned for in the development of the newest revision to the WMP.
2) It should not be used as proof in future proceedings that a repeat of the storage levels we are now seeing is sufficient evidence of a threat to human health and safety.

While CWIC does not stand in direct opposition to this order, we do take issue with a number of the Findings of Fact as being inaccurate or misleading as well as unnecessary. Such findings have weight beyond these proceedings even if only in the court of public opinion. In order to clarify the record and prevent the use and abuse of such findings, CWIC urges the deletion or alteration of the following Findings:

- Finding 8 – We propose a rewording of the first sentence of Finding 8. This finding infers that the 2010 WMP indicates that LCRA cannot supply interruptible water once the firm demand equals the combined firm yield. That is not the case. Suggested modification:

  "As established in the 2010 WMP, ~~until firm demand for water equals the combined firm yield,~~ LCRA can supply interruptible water for irrigated agriculture on an interruptible basis ~~to the extent possible without~~ only to the extent that it does not impinge upon the LCRA's ability to meet its obligations to its firm customers."

- Findings 15 and 17 – We propose deleting Findings 15 & 17 in their entirety. Finding 15 suggests that "conditions" could return seemingly immediately to "pre-May levels" as if water could simply disappear from the lakes and we would have pre-May lake levels. Additionally this finding combined with the content of Finding 17 falsely leads the reader to believing there are 44,500 acres of rice out there that may have to be serviced by LCRA irrigation systems even now at the end of the first crop season, and that somehow this remaining portion of the season could see the use of 175,000 AF of stored water. This is blatantly false and misleading on multiple levels. The Farm Service Agency does not track which rice acreage is serviceable by the LCRA. The Agency also does not track the source of irrigation water. Nevertheless, there are numerous acres that are groundwater-irrigated and which lie outside the LCRA's irrigation service areas as well of many acres that have been traditionally groundwater-irrigated within the service areas. It is inappropriate to base model runs upon this inaccurate reflection of potential acres for conversion to surface water. Of note is the fact that Wharton County has a long history of over 25,000 acres of rice being planted that do not rely upon LCRA for water. This fact alone, cuts the number of available acres for conversion to a mere 19,500 from the total of 44,500 acres included in Finding 17, and there are other acres in the remaining two counties that similarly fall outside LCRA service areas. Rather than attempting to rectify these significant errors, we recommend deleting these two findings.
- Finding 16 – We suggest adding the following sentence to Finding 16 for clarification:
  "The availability of surface water at this late date in the irrigation season may or may not necessary lead to the conversion of groundwater-irrigated acres to surface water. There are many factors that could preclude such mid-season conversions.
- Finding 32 – We suggest either deleting this finding in its entirety or deleting the last sentence. While the bulk of this meteorological finding is true and factual, without the subjectivity provided by the last sentence, the finding does not support the order. In fact it supports the opposite. There is a subjective opinion made in the last sentence that infers that "the large storms" that may result from the before-mentioned, improved weather conditions will "hit downstream of Lake Travis" based on the fact that "many times ...the large storms hit downstream of Lake Travis." While it is true many storms have and will act in this way, it does not negate the improved forecast for the Highland Lakes watershed (upstream of Lake Travis) which appears to be the subject of this finding.
- Finding 66 – We suggest deleting Finding 66 in its entirety. This finding relies on a TWDB study that suggests a 15 to 20% savings of water affects "customers' quality of life and local economic conditions." This does not support an eminent threat to human health and safety. If such a finding is truly of relevance then it would need to be balanced against the quality of life and economic conditions brought about by granting the order as well.

CWIC urges the Commission to adopt these changes to the Findings of Fact in the order before considering the affirmation of the order itself.

Sincerely,

Ronald Gertson

Water Code § 11.139, to the Lower Colorado River Authority (LCRA) to amend its 2010 Water Management Plan (WMP), Permit No. 5838.*

Dear Ms. Bohac:

The Central Texas Water Coalition (CTWC) appreciates the opportunity to submit these comments in support of the Lower Colorado River Authority's (LCRA's) request for emergency relief from the 2010 Water Management Plan (WMP) through October 15, 2015.

CTWC is a nonprofit organization that advocates for the preservation and conservation of the Highland Lakes' water supply for the benefit of human health and safety. Our organization includes municipal water suppliers and domestic water users who hold firm water contracts from LCRA for use of water from the Highland Lakes, as well as other entities and individuals that rely upon the presence of water in Lakes Buchanan and Travis for their health and welfare.

The current emergency situation is caused by a combination of two conditions: (1) continuing drought; and (2) an outdated WMP that we now know to be inadequately protective of firm water supplies. Although some parts of central Texas have received rains in the last two months, these rains do not mark an end to the drought. And while the outdated WMP is well on its way toward revision, it is not yet complete. Until a revised WMP is in effect, emergency conditions continue.

The LCRA has presented convincing support for its request. As LCRA documents, there is insufficient evidence to conclude the drought is over. While we are grateful for two months of wet weather, rainfall is only part of the drought relief equation. Those rains must translate into inflows into the lakes. Even with the past two months' rain, Lake Buchanan is barely above half-full. And this bump in storage could be only a temporary one, as we have seen so many times before (most notably, during the drought of record in the 1950s). Releasing water under the 2010

WMP would undo the tenuous gains we have made, just when temperatures and firm water needs are highest.

The necessity for emergency orders during the current drought demonstrates that the 2010 WMP is not adequately protective of firm water supplies. CTWC urges the Commission to affirm the ED's order so that we are not forced back under the 2010 WMP. CTWC appreciates the wisdom and leadership that the LCRA, the ED, and the Commission have shown in reminding all of us how important it is to be conservative with our water at all times. We respectfully request that the Commission affirm the ED's Order of June 17, 2015 to continue to protect central Texas' drinking water supply through the remainder of the year.

Sincerely,

Subject: Regarding The Highland Lakes Release Downstream

I would like to urge the TCEQ to reverse the decision to allow releases from the Highland Lakes downstream. While it is true that we have had a spell of good rain, I would like to point out the following factors that indicate that the releases should not be allowed:

- The Highland Lakes are not, in fact, full. Lake Travis is nearly full due to recent good rains, but Lake Buchanan is near 50% full.
- Many cities in Central Texas are still under water restrictions. Downstream releases should not be allowed while Central Texas cities still have to conserve water.
- The last time that downstream releases were allowed during a dry spell, Lake Travis eventually fell to very low levels, triggering drastic water restrictions in Central Texas cities. If its level had fallen any lower, it could have been a catastrophic situation.

For these reason, I respectfully urge the TCEQ to not allow Highland Lakes releases downstream.

Subject: Comments concerning the supply of water to farmers - Lake Travis

I would like to provide my comment regarding the sale of water from Lake Travis to farmers

Lake Travis is currently still 10' below full and the reservoirs upstream are not yet replenished even though there has been substantial rainfall.

The downstream affects of the rainfall should also be reviewed to see how the needs for water from Lake Travis may have changed

The last years of low water in Lake Travis have had a huge effect on multiple business's, properties and recreation in the area, and even though there may be agreements and contracts grandfathered into place for the supply of water, a great deal has changed since those agreements were made. Austin has grown immensely in the last years especially the communities around the lake, and the Lake is very much a part of recreation and well being in the community, and is part of a vibrant Austin life.

Previous agreements should be revisited to ensure that Austin communities are not deprived of the life that this lake breathes into Austin, and adjusted so that we do not have the same reduced water levels.

I would certainly like to see how the water being supplied downstream is actually being used and what the reliance is on the water supply of the farmers and if this could be better adjusted. There are suggestions that the farmers consume more water than they need because if they do not, they loose it - use it or loose it.

Its time to reevaluate the use of this water to make sure that while famers downstream benefit the people and communities of Austin do not suffer as a result. The price of the4 water being sold is not an issue for me - its the value it takes away

I am pleased to see that the emergency order is being revisited at this time. My preference is that the entire issue is reexamined before the lake level is affected by natural drought or water sales again.

Thanks

Subject: Public Hearing regarding Highland Lakes water releases

To Whom it May Concern:

I am writing in regards to the public hearing set for July 1st at 9:30 AM to discuss reversing the emergency order restricting water releases from the Highland Lakes for agriculture use.

One large rainfall does not a drought end. The dams and reservoirs in the Highland Lakes systems have two central purposes: flood control and as a drinking water supply for cities in the region. Primary purposes of these dams never included ensuring an adequate and constant supply of water for interruptible users downstream -- nor were they designed to primarily supply the needs of recreation users.

Most of the counties that are in the region of Lake Buchanan and Lake Travis are still in Stage 2 drought restrictions. These restrictions have not been lifted despite the recent rainfalls and despite the increase in level in Lake Travis.

Once Austin, TX and other cities in the Highland Lakes region end their water restrictions, then and only then is it appropriate to release these cities' water supplies to downstream interruptible users.

Sincerely,
Karl Katzke

I would like to put my voice in that I am opposed to the releasing of water at this time. We have had some amazing rises in Lake Travis, however the drought is not over and I do not believe it is either economically smart nor morally OK to release water at this time. Rice is not a native crop to Texas and these farmers have the capabilites of building reservoirs to collect all the rain that has fallen in their own region.

We have thousands of people depending on this water here for basic survival. Please do not make the same mistakes as California.

I stand against releasing...

Myself and many of my neighbors are extremely concerned about the planned release of water from Lake Travis, etc downstream to agricultural interests. After the historical drought over the last few years I strongly support retaining water in Lake Travis and the associated basin. The central Texas area must plan for another drought and releasing our primary water source downstream is irresponsible.

Thanks so much-

Our community has grown exponentially in the past several years and continues in that pattern. Lake Travis is our critical to our everyday lives. We need this water. It's time to reevaluate the uses downstream and find a better way. This water was once a luxury to this area and we could help without risk but that has changed. We have to be responsible for our community's needs first and then the needs of others.

Hello TCEQ,
Please take heed and continue to conserve water in Lake Travis and all of the Highland Lakes chain. Thankfully El Nino has strengthened and blessed us with much need rain in Lake Travis which is now almost full. Now predictably the Rice Farmers downstream want the water. Due to mismanagement and doing business as usual mistakes were made in 2011 releasing more water to Rice Farmers than the whole usage of Austin alone. Now is the time to learn from our mistakes. I as a firm water customer have been concerned about having enough water for us all. With erratic weather and exploding growth in this area it seems that it is time to change our old ways and be more conservative with our water. WATER IS LIFE!! The Rice Farmers get much more water in their area then we do in Central Texas and are most wasteful with it. They as well as all of us must change our ways .

Thank you,

Dear Mr. Hyde,

I was difficult to locate the correct information to make a public comment regarding the above topic set for your meeting tomorrow so I am emailing you directly.

Please affirm the Emergency Order you issued on June 17, 2015. The Highland Lakes are still recovering and there is no guarantee that we will not return to worsening drought conditions as the summer progresses.

Thousands of families have moved to Central Texas in recent years. As a result the demand on the Highland Lakes has been forever changed. It is time to consider permanent changes for the way water from these lakes is used.

Please Save Our Lakes!

Regards,
Shae Tibbets

Dear Executive Director,

I am asking that you continue to maintain the levels in Lake Travis and allow for lake Buchanan to rise to a more normal level before considering any release of water, which is not necessary. It is vital to the community and the businesses around the highland lake areas.

To assume that we are out of "drought" dangers would be poor judgment and compromise the lakes/communities as was done in the mismanagement of 2011. We should all continue to conserve this precious resource and stop the overuse and overselling of it.

Thank you,
Tammy

I do not get it. You have just went thru an amazing drought . now you want to release the water that brought the Lake Travis up to its normal levels. have you not learned a lesson from the affects you had to endure during this time. As a result of the replenishment of water commerce is up , your supply restored. i agree that the drought is not over and it is to soon to think it is. As a direct result of this you need to conserve this resource. learn from the past !!!! some organizations may have to be denied this resource for a short time. in saying that these other environments seeking supply should have a back up resource for there operations. i am, a winter Texan, i enjoy coming to Austin Texas , the lake was 1 of my drawing cards . i look forward to returning to seeing a full lake !!!! you have been blessed with a renewable resource you cant buy . be pro active , be responsible

thank you

Good Morning,

Much like the growth of the Lake Travis area, which has changed (exploded) in recent years so should the handling of something so Important to our local economy. It isn't about denying those downstream. It's about finding a balance. What was once built as a reservoir now has much more surrounding it with many more demands on it!

Please do not release our water downstream to subsidized farmers with big pocket books. You are hurting small business owners who employee thousands from the area. This article states that the area's financial output has overtaken what the farmers put back in: http://stateimpact.npr.org/texas/2012/04/16/rice-farmers-used-more-than-three-times-as-much-water-as-austin-last-year/

So the farmers are getting our water for pennies, government money, and putting less into the economy than the small businesses being hurt by low lakes!!!

Please consider all sides, not just the well funded ones! It is madness to consider releasing water from Lake Travis downstream when the drought is NOT over! One week of rain to semi-restore the lake to average levels could be followed by another three years of NO rain!

Please think ahead, farther ahead the ONE RICE CROP!

Dear LCRA,

The people of the Austin are just now getting their livelihoods back. I'm writing to inform you of my concern that it seems the LCRA is in bed with the Rice Farmers rather than for the better of the Austin area. Your focus should be on the citizens of Austin & surrounding areas. I'm quite sure you're aware of the volume of water required to farm rice, why not offer a suggestion to those farmers? Want to grow rice, move to the everglades where there's plenty of water constantly! The LCRA has become a For Profit & the public is recognizing this, you are a government entity & you're working against the law. Pick up your losses with the Farmers & stick up for the better detriment of the people of Austin. Our homes, our businesses & our future. 100+ is the number moving to Austin a day....do the math, it's not new news.

As a longtime Lakeway resident, I've seen the impact that low lake levels can have on the local economy. Please do not open the floodgates to Lake Travis to send water downstream until we know that the current levels will be sustained with additional rain later this year. In addition, the summer of 2016 is predicted by many meteorologists to be one of the hottest and driest in recent years.

I hope that we can all learn from recent history (downpours in 2010 followed by the peak of the drought in 2011) and focus on water conservation. Please do the right thing and prioritize the many families and businesses that make their homes in the highland lakes area over downstream users.

Hi,
I'm so concerned about the Rice Farmers wanting to open conversation. Man... We just get it full and to even think about putting the business owners, homeowners and drinking water at risk is just ludicrous. We live in an uncertain climate changing World and we think God the Rain came and filled our Lake. But in a snap it could shut off again...and it Will. Please don't be that delusional!!! Can you imagine if the lake had gotten to 10% full. It could of and still can happen. Rethink this Rice Farming please. I think the World will have plenty of Rice without Lake Travis Water.
And please this not be another opportunist where it's all about special interest money. This is what's ruining the World and frankly just giving Greedy people a good name.
Please STOP!

Just because we had a wet month of May does not mean we're out of the woods - we've just gotten a reprieve.

Once we're over 681, maybe meter some out, but not like what they're asking for.

DON'T DRAIN THE POND!

The water rights were set up when nobody lived out here - sorry, things have changed, so policies have to change accordingly.

I think a more measured approach and a continued policy of conservation will serve all of us well.

COMMENTS: We know that just because the lake is up and we have had a good spring in terms of rainfall totals that the drought is by no means over. Discharging water for commercial use puts the viability of our drinking water supply in jeopardy and is shortsighted. What the commercial interests downstream should do is build themselves a reservoir. Please say no to discharges from the lake system for downstream commercial use.

Subject: Lake Water

Please, please consider the ramifications of releasing water from Lake Travis for downstream irrigation. Buchanan is approximately half full and Travis is at 84%. This is after YEARS of drought and we have barely recovered. At the very least, charge them the same amount that we are paying for our water (which we have been trying to conserve). Their pocketbooks would force them to conserve also.

I am totally in agreement with cutting back on lawn watering, car washing, etc., but the Austin area is growing at a very rapid pace with many new families arriving daily. All need WATER!

Thank you for your consideration!

Carol Bosse

COMMENTS: Mis-management of our lake and water have gone on long enough. More efforts on conversation and collection are needed. Less concentration on capital. I submit that no water be released from Lake Travis unless water has breached the spillway. No further contracts to farmers down stream. More efforts on education, usage and collections for citizens. How can you not agree???

COMMENTS: Some of the lakes may be very close to being full, when measured in feet but we still have a massive volume of water missing from our lakes. Until all 5 lakes are at 95% volume we shouldn't even consider this. If we do sell water, it should be extremely limited. A reservoir was already built downstream for the rice farms, if they don't have enough water now they should consider doing business elsewhere and not force the collapse of billions of dollars worth of properly value. I support a continuation of the Emergency Order issued by the Executive Director (ED) on June 17, 2015, pursuant to Tex. Water Code § 11.139, to the Lower Colorado River Authority (LCRA) to amend its 2010 Water Management Plan (WMP), Permit No. 5838.

COMMENTS: Please uphold the LCRA request to not allow water flows downstream from Lakes Travis, LBJ, Inks, Marble Falls and Buchannan. One weather event does not constitute the ending of a drought. There is a very large economy in the Highland Lakes area that relies on water. I have seen a few friends loose their business because water levels in the lakes were not upheld. The other consideration is that 1+ million people need that water for drinking water and safety standards. I can't imagine what would happen if there was another large scale wildfire in the area and there was no water coming out of the fire hydrants because the drought order was not upheld. There are many consideration in this decision. I would hold very highly the quality of life without any water in the lakes to provide drinking water. Thanks

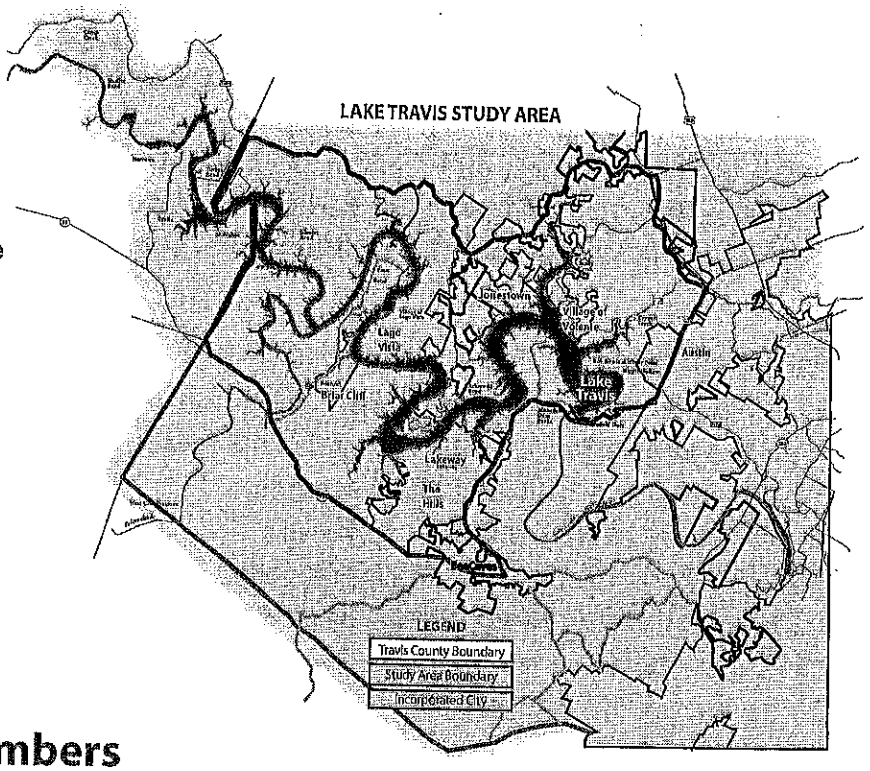
Lake Travis Economic Impact Report

Overview

Origins of Report

A coalition of governments, non-profits and businesses commissioned a study to calculate a baseline economic and fiscal value to the area surrounding Lake Travis. The study by consulting firm RCLCO used historical data and econometric models to assess the financial impact low lake levels or poor water quality have on the region.



Lake Travis Coalition Members

City of Austin, City of Jonestown, City of Lago Vista, City of Lakeway, Hurst Creek Municipal District, Lago Vista/Jonestown Chamber of Commerce, Lago Vista Economic Development Alliance, Lake Travis Chamber of Commerce, Lakeway Municipal Utility District, Samsung, Travis County, Village of Briarcliff, Village of Point Venture, Village of The Hills, Village of Volente, Water Control & Improvement District 17, Water Control & Improvement District Point Venture

Establishes a Baseline

A full Lake Travis generates revenue from property, sales, hotel and mixed beverage taxes that buys ambulances, maintains schools and provides state government with needed funding.

Lake Travis = A Significant Economic Engine

- $207.2 million in revenue for state and local governments
- $8.4 billion in assessed property value
- $3.6 million in hotel and mixed beverage taxes
- 3,900 commercial businesses in study area contribute $45.2 million in sales tax

	Employment Effects	Total Value Added
Lake Related Activity	Indirect Total	Indirect Total
Total Visitor Spending	1,607	$90,497,000
Boat Sales	309	$22,135,000
Total	1,916	$112,632,000

Assesses Impact of Low Lake Levels

Economic Impact

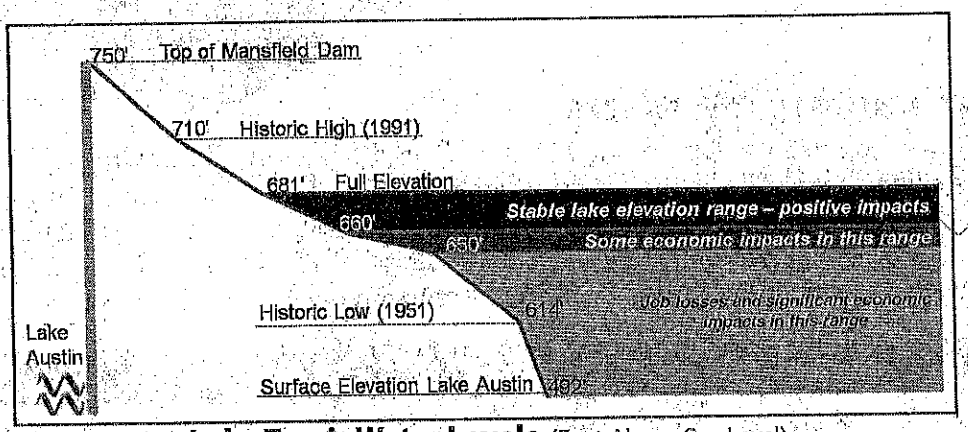
When lake levels remain below 660 feet, visitations decline and businesses contract. Low lake levels lead to:

- 350,000 – 375,000 fewer park visits
- 29 lost jobs for each 10% drop in park visits
- $23.6 million to $33.8 million reductions in visitor spending
- Up to 241 lost jobs and $6.1 million in wages

Fiscal Impact

Low lake levels decrease visitors and value and can impact government revenues substantially. When levels are low, governments could lose up to:

- $21.9 million in total fiscal revenues
- $1.7 million lost sales tax revenue
- $45,000 from decreased hotel receipts
- $120,000 from less visitors ordering mixed drinks



Lake Travis Water Levels (Feet Above Sea Level)

Assesses Impact of Water Quality

Interviews and studies reveal water quality is the feature locals like best about Lake Travis. Increased chlorophyll-a and nutrients correlates with impairment to recreational use, and leads to declines in boating. Studies on other lakes indicate lakefront land values drop 10% for each meter drop in water clarity. Were this to occur on Lake Travis the property losses would be between $27 million to $53 million.

What You Can Do

Speak to your state legislators, county commissioners, local officials and chamber of commerce to see how you or your business can help preserve the value of Lake Travis.

COMMENTS: Please limit the amount of water released from the lake so as not to continue the cycle of misuse and overuse of the water in Lake Travis. This lake is a key part of the community and the rice farmers should not be given priority over the residents who live at or around the lake. The lake is a valuable resource and the during the recent record lows, water was still released out to the rice farmers which was ridiculous. The farmers should source the water for rice from a different source, or better yet, not grow such a thirsty crop in a climate such as texas. It is ridiculous to do that.

COMMENTS: In my opinion this would be a terrible idea especially given the fact that Lake Buchanan is only 50% full and there is a continuing to drought with hardly any inflow as we speak today. The area has been devastated by drought since basically 2009 him we are finally able to actually utilize some of our property are late for the very first time and now you want to take that away not good

COMMENTS: I support a continuation of the Emergency Order issued by the Executive Director on 6-17-2015 pursuant to Texas water code 11.139 to the LCRA to amend its 2010 Water Management Plan Permit 5838. The drought is not over because of a few heavy rains -- people are moving to our area in droves and water is needed for them. At the very least, charge the same amount for the water to encourage conservation downstream as we have been doing here for years. Thank you!

COMMENTS: I strongly support a continuation of the Emergency Order issued by the Executive Director (ED) on June 17, 2015, pursuant to Tex. Water Code § 11.139, to the Lower Colorado River Authority (LCRA) to amend its 2010 Water Management Plan (WMP), Permit No. 5838. The significant negative impact on financial and living conditions on those who live on and around the highland lakes is well documented. The fact that there are finally some inflows to the highland lakes that can positively improve both the financial and living conditions and the first thing that happens is the LCRA once again proposes to act in a way that completely disregards its responsibilities to serve the best interests of the highland lakes and those who live on and around them, is despicable as well as it shows the complete malfunction and lack of responsible oversight of government. If the TCEQ allows the exception for LCRA it will will just add to why the citizens who live on and around the highland lakes distrust and abhor the TCEQ and the LCRA for failing us.

I was HIGHLY distressed again today when reading an article in the Austin American Statesman that LCRA Has "Plenty of Water" now to Sell to

Hays County also. With all the development in and around the Austin area in TRAVIS county alone.....and all the new residents moving to the area DAILY....it is not too difficult to determine that there will not be enough water in the future to sustain minimum drinking water for all the inhabitants that rely on water from the Highland Lakes unless we continue to have rain as we have received recently! PLEASE don't put our area in jeopardy by removing the Emergency Order. The Emergency order is necessary to stay in place as we DO NOT know what our future weather patterns are going to be. Sincerely, Cleta Stapp

COMMENTS: My family and I depended on catching fish from Lake Travis to offset high food costs. If you plan on selling the water again as you have done in the past you should refund my fishing license cost and give me a food stipend. Also completely change the lake maps so it shows the real depth of the lake from feet to inches!

I do not think it is prudent to release water from Mansfield Dam at this time. Lake Buchanan is only slightly above 50% full; Lake Travis needs to retain drinkable water in its dam until Lake Buchanan has higher levels.

The Rice Lobby weilds too much power when they're trying to rob our water to grow rice in an inappropriate and uninviting environment. Rice farms should be in naturally wet environs, east Texas and Louisiana - not in drought-riddled central Texas. That's insane. They need to change to growing something that is more in tune with the climate they have chosen to live in, rather than trying to change the existing condition to match what They want, at the expense of millions of citizens who need that water just to live. Stop being short-sighted. It's time for some long-range planning.

Our lake has not had enough to time filter itself and re-establish a viable ecosystem for tourists and fishermen nor have the businesses and citizens had time to recover from the second worst drought in our regions recorded history. I personally would like to see an statement from an independent biologist stating the lake has reached a point in the natural balance where water can safely be released and more concern from LCRA for the citizens they serve. -Scott D. COMMENTS: My family and I have lived in Steiner Ranch for nine years and have seen Lake Travis at various levels of capacity, from dangerously low to dangerously overflowing. We've also seen the incredible expansion and development from Bee Cave to Lakeway to Cedar Park...all around the city of Austin one can find vast developments of homes, office spaces, restaurants and retailers. When I hear the arguments about water rights, it essentially comes down to the rice farmers versus residents and other businesses. These are the two opposing sides (for lack of a better description) who have a vested interest in how the Highland lake waters are used. I understand the rice farmers have first rights in that their claim to water is set as the historical precedent. They got their water rights first so they are first in line where the water is concerned.

Subject: Potential water release from Lake Travis

Dear Sir or Madam,
I am writing you this morning to voice my concern over potential releases from Lake Travis at this time. While the recent rains were disastrous for many in the Wimberley and New Braunfels areas, we in the Lake Travis area feel blessed to once again see the lake at an average level of 82% full. Businesses surrounding the lake will once again thrive after many years of hard times and one of the signature pieces of Austin living will once again be usable. If you were to release water downstream, not only we, in this area, would suffer, but those around Lake Buchanan, which sits at only 51% full, would as well. There is no good reason to punish those of us upstream to make money for those downstream. Besides have they not received enough rainfall themselves? This is about money for them, not need. Please extend the emergency order.
Thank you,

Master Chris Abramson

Please do not open the flood gates at Lake Travis for Duck Hunters and Rice Farmers. We made that mistake before. Every other farmer in the US makes do with the rain and when it doesnt rain he prays for rain. This is what we drink. Do not give them this victory at our expense.

Subject: rice farmers

Is it true or a rumor that water might be let out of the Mansfield Dam for the rice farmers? I find it hard to believe that they have not received enough rain and I know that if even a little bit of water is let out to them, there will be some very upset people. PLEASE do not consider this. We have prayed and finally got water back in our lake that we are going to need to drink! With so many straws in the lake, I am praying that this will not be considered. Will you please email me back and let me know what the decision is or if this is a false rumor?
Thank you

DO NOT OPEN THE FLOODGATES!!! Today was our first day out on the lake in years! Take water out for those who don't need it and we won't be able to get our boat in the Sandy Creek arm and boat ramps in Jonestown. We are ready to support the businesses on the lake, but won't be able to if they take water out. The trees have grown so tall when the water was gone it is still hard to navigate with the water we have. We need more water-NOT LESS! Please, please do not take water out!

Please don't release water from Lake Travis. The water should stay in Lake Travis. Buchanan is only 51%! Please don't repeat the mistakes of the past. Consider what makes the most sense to do with the wonderful rain water that we have been blessed to receive.

Subject: re: Lake Travis

Against sending water downstream for rice farming.

As a long time Lake Travis resident I think it's time we concern ourselves with conserving the water levels in Lake Travis for those who live in the area and those who work here and use Lake Travis. We can not afford to let the water just run downstream to fill up the rice fields of some LCRA directors property. There has been too much collusion and under handed dealings when it comes to allocating the limited resources that Lake Travis has. Due to the rising population in the area even greater demands have been put on the watershed which is Lake Travis. Like those two huger straws going to Cedar Park. Doesn't human consumption come before profits to the few who own rice farms. Should the lake have a higher normal level? Probably, based on new population data. But we can never tell when a flood will come and we can't see a drought coming either. The lake is just now coming back after years of drought and before we instantly drain it back down we need to decide what's more important, people or profits? I like rice, but I haven't seen a rice shortage since we've been in this drought, which tells me there are plenty of other rice producers elsewhere in the world. So rice supply hasn't been hurt by the drought, but lots of local businesses and local people have been hurt by the low lake. The rice farmers will just have to operate on the amount of water that is truly extra or change their chosen crop to one that demands less water or get it from another source. What about desalination we have plenty of water in the gulf can't they pump it up from there? When Lake Travis is over 681 in the summer then you can send the extra downstream, but we aren't there yet. There are some things we could do to help the level, like toilets that don't flush a gallon of clean drinkable water everytime someone urinates less than an once. Businesses and homes watering their yards while it's raining. Restaurants giving people a glass of water when they sit down then pouring it away when no one drinks it. Why shouldn't we ask if you want a glass of water. It's still free but you don't waste the water and the ice cubes which are made of water on people who don't want it. It's also less dishes to wash so that saves water too. How many millions of gallons of water are being wasted by old habits and bad technology? We don't even have a full bucket so lets not start emptying it already.

Subject: Do not release water from the Highland Lakes to the rice farmers

Just because we've had recent rains, we are still in a dire situation and the water from the Highland Lakes should not be released. There's no proof the drought is necessarily over just because we had some good short-term rainfall. Lake Buchanan is still at 51% and it will be penalized if you start releasing water. Additionally the economy of the uplakers has barely started to come back. Don't be the villain who damns these folks again.

Our lives have just gotten back to some degree of normal, on Lake Travis. As the daughter of a crop duster on the coast I understand their needs also. Considering both sides I have to conclude the release, from Travis would be devastating here and unnecessary there. Their rainfall far exceeds the Highland Lakes rainfall. Please help the Highland Lakes region!

Subject: Sale of water to downstream farmers from Lake Travis

I would like to provide my comment regarding the sale of water from Lake Travis to farmers

Lake Travis is currently still 10' below full and the reservoirs upstream are not yet replenished even though there has been substantial rainfall.

The downstream affects of the rainfall should also be reviewed to see how the needs for water from Lake Travis may have changed

The last years of low water in Lake Travis have had a huge effect on multiple business's, properties and recreation in the area, and even though there may be agreements and contracts grandfathered into place for the supply of water, a great deal has changed since those agreements were made. Austin has grown immensely in the last years especially the communities around the lake, and the Lake is very much a part of recreation and well being in the community, and is part of a vibrant Austin life.

Previous agreements should be revisited to ensure that Austin communities are not deprived of the life that this lake breathes into Austin, and adjusted so that we do not have the same reduced water levels.

I would certainly like to see how the water being supplied downstream is actually being used and what the reliance is on the water supply of the farmers and if this could be better adjusted. There are suggestions that the farmers consume more water than they need because if they do not, they loose it - use it or loose it.

Its time to reevaluate the use of this water to make sure that while famers downstream benefit the people and communities of Austin do not suffer as a result. The price of the4 water being sold is not an issue for me - its the value it takes away

I am pleased to see that the emergency order is being revisited at this time. My preference is that the entire issue is reexamined before the lake level is affected by natural drought or water sales again.

Thanks

Subject: Water Releases from Lake Travis

To whom it may concern:

The water plan needs to be revised. It is outdated and does not properly address the current drought issues that we are attempting to recover from. The recent rainfalls do NOT constitute the end of the drought in Central Texas. PLEASE do not release water from Lake Travis. Local businesses have been suffering for YEARS due to the mismanagement of the water releases in 2010! It makes NO sense to release water when businesses are finally starting to see an uptick after 5 long years. Likewise, the rice farmers have also received tremendous amounts of rain this year. PLEASE listen to reason and help rewrite a fair, equitable water management plan for all!

We respectfully ask that our side as residents and business owners in the Lake Travis community be considered in this decision.

Thank you!

When there is extra water available, growing rice in our river valley makes some sort of sense. If the farmers can't grow without taxing our water supply, then they should just go out of business. Austin has the most senior water right of all, having been founded over a century before the first agricultural rights were granted.

Buchanan is still only half-full.

Do the right thing, keep the water until the drought is definitely over.

Good Afternoon,
I was recently informed that we are once again considering releasing water from Lake Travis. The Lake has not fully recovered from the last release. The population in the Lake Travis area has grown and we have no guarantees of continuing rain amounts. Lake levels are a huge issue. I think any consideration of release should be postponed until proper studies can be conducted to insure there would be no impact on the residents of the Lake Travis area. This is a bad idea.

Good Morning,

Don't make the same mistake made in 2011 when 50% of Lake Travis was sold downstream in the midst of our state's worst drought on record! You must employ balanced and fair management of central Texas' water resources. We all understand that Lake Travis was built originally to serve as a flood control reservoir. Clearly we can all agree that much has changed since the 40's. The strain on our water supply from the growing population as well as the undeniable detrimental economic impact (as documented in a reputable economic impact study several years ago) has to be fully considered.

Please do not release our water downstream to subsidized farmers. You are putting small business owners out of business (Café Blue, Johnny Fin's, Carlos 'n Charlies, Hurst Harbor).

Mandate the agriculture industry in the Houston and coastal bend area to construct off channel storage and retention tanks that they can use to irrigate from during times when water cannot be sensibly released from the highland lakes.

It's common knowledge now that rice farmers receive highland lakes water at a fractional cost and yet are still subsidized with government money. This is NOT fair or balanced.

I implore you to fairly consider all sides of this issue!

I believe it is of critical importance in a drought-prone state like Texas to prioritize water usage carefully. I've heard that there is a hearing to possibly reverse the TCEQ emergency order to not release water downstream.

I would very much oppose this change. While the recent weather has put a lot of water back into one of the lakes, this vital source of our drinking water is still in jeopardy. Lake Buchanan is still sadly just over 50% full and we are still rightfully under water restrictions.

We've seen in 2011 how one year can go from a better position than we were in now, to a very bad state. And it was the downstream farmers that put a huge strain on our reservoirs and we should adjust our policies and procedures to learn from our past mistakes.

I would ask that before releasing any water downstream you consider:

1.The historical aspect of this drought that is most likely not be over
2. The practice of farmers reselling water at higher prices, effectively draining the lake only for their profit.
3. The pricing disparity of firm vs non-firm clients. If the downstream clients were asked to pay more, we may not be in this tug of war.

I am requesting that you please do not open up the flood gates of Mansfield Dam. Can you delay this decision?

My family and I live in Lakeway and my work is directly related to Lake Travis water levels. It has been so long since the lake has been up and I am hoping that with a delayed decision will help spare the water levels until we know unconditionally that the water levels are here to stay!

Thank you for your consideration.

Subject: Water in Lake Travis

I am told that there is a chance that the order to hold water in Lake Travis might be changed this year. Given the extent of the drought we have sign over the last several years and the fact that experts are still not truly declaring us out of the drought, I strongly encourage the TCEQ and the LCRA to continue holding water in Lake Travis through at least end of 2015 to see if the weather pattern holds. Also, given the amount of water that has already gone down the Colorado River below Austin, they could have had all the water the rice farmers could want so why would we release more water downstream?

My family has owned stock in a rice warehousing company in SE Texas for over 25 years and the dividends have been better the last 2 years(while the rice farmers were not receiving water from Lake Travis) than in any of the previous 23 years, which suggests they are finding new ways to grow rice and appear to be doing it quite well.

Please do not reverse your course in mid-year. Too many people's drinking water depends on this lake.

Subject: Regarding proposed release of water from Lake Travis to rice farmers

TCEQ,

I was told by Facebook that there is someone sort of comment period for some action being considered on release of water for rice farmers out of Lake Travis.

I think this would be a highly imprudent thing to release such water. The lake is now more importantly used to support an increasing population as the primary water source for millions, and for the need to ensure that environment does not go into an permanently arid/semi-arid state ("primary purposes"). These primary purposes trump rice farmers. I don't argue against the release for reasons regarding the beauty of the lake or recreations purposes of the lake.

The LCRA release in 2011 to rice farmers put the community in danger of drought and further endangered that community by requiring such strict water rationing. Much of 2011 became so dry in this area that the wildfire risk became extreme (Bastrop wildfires). When a community doesn't sufficiently water their trees, or have enough water in its creeks and river basins, the trees die or become at risk of pests, infections, falling, etc. Those trees become fuel - both putting immediate lives in risk and destroying the environment. While Austin is being good at conservation, LCRA should not penalize us by giving the water to the rice farmers and risking our long-term water supply for that purpose.

Even if the population wasn't as rapidly growing, such release would be imprudent. However, LCRA cannot even predict accurately the future population growth, let alone the potential for continued rain. Thus, the water is required for a population in Central Texas that is expected to keep growing. Learn from the error of the decision makers in 2011 doing a large release that CAUSED a large part of the problem in the last several years. The vast loss on the Lake Travis lake level was not human consumption that year but by those rice farmer releases.

Does water rationing further intensify a drought and increase risk of continued drought? Yes. Common sense - the less water and humidity in an environment means that when fronts come through there is less humidity to trigger showers. A basic observation of this effect was clear in 2011-2014. The humidity levels in those summers were the lowest I have seen since I moved to Austin in 1975. I saw repeated fronts come through between 2011-2014 and did not produce rain even when it was predicted. Why would it? The process is a basic bio-status feedback cascade.

With no one being able to water trees, grass, run fountains, etc. to maintain a sufficient amount of humidity in the area, the regular humidity levels became semi-arid. When repeated fronts came through during those years, any showers for other parts of Texas ended when they hit the Austin area since there was insufficient humidity to maintain the clouds and produce rain. No rain, even lower humidity, and you start to create a semi-arid environment as the bio-feedback loop cascades. The trees shifted into a fuel state, making them susceptible to infects/pests, weakening them more for either heavy rain (and being uprooted) or dying and dropping limbs, etc. Without vegetation there is even less water in the system. The high pressure cell that was created over the state then kept many fronts and even tropical storms/hurricanes out of the state, furthering the process of keeping rain out and changing a grassland environment into a semi-arid one. We are fortunate the pattern was disrupted and a new one has started. Why risk its return too soon? A similar high pressure cell currently sits over the West and California, keeping temperatures high and no moisture.

The process can become a runaway process. For California, it is not even clear that they can shift out of this pattern. To prevent that from occurring in Texas, while we need to continue to conserve water while maintaining a good amount of moisture in your system. A good balance might be getting rid of St. Augustine grass and take out cedars that are the worst water hog offenders. Without those we otherwise need to have sufficient water in the system to have sufficient humidity to create rain as fronts come through. As this spring shows, if there is sufficient water, more water will come as rain. With enough rain in this area, more water will go down the Colorado naturally for those rice farmers.

Before you were to release such water, consider visiting with republican counterparts in Northern California who are in desperate need of water with little hope. They might view decisions they made a decade ago as foolish and should have sought to protect their water resources better. It may be too late for them. It is not for Texas, largely thanks to the rain totals this spring. We believe in a rainy day fund at the Legislature. The water in Travis is our rainy day fund - don't waste it.

What about the rice farmers? One, growing rice in an environment that does not support it is dumb. The water needs of rice is such that they might want to shift their efforts to naturally swamp-like ecosystems, since that is similar to the areas where rice grows (Vietnam, for instance). It would be equally foolish if we as a community listened to someone wanting to grow a rain forest in Texas - we don't have the natural resources to support that effort. Rice farmers should have been getting plenty of water this spring from what falls below Lake Travis and cannot be captured. As I understand it, there might be an effort to build a reservoir downstream to capture the water that is not currently captured by LCRA. Even with that, the balance does not support the current release of water from Travis.

I even agree with the City of Austin's not lifting general water restrictions. We do not know if this rain continues or how our populations will continue to explode. Even modest easing up on restrictions need to carefully balance the increasing the water in our system for humidity but also the need to protect the reservoir for human consumption.

Be prudent. Ensure that water is kept in Lake Travis at least until the fall. Likely flood gates might have to be opened if we exceed 681, and keeping Travis at 681 seems prudent. We still have 10 feet left. We should not drop the lake below 681 in the summer and particularly with Buchanan 10 feet low, as well. Rice farmer water should NOT be used to drop the lake below 681.

I am totally opposed to releasing any water downstream. We have been in critical drought conditions until a couple of months ago. We can return to that quickly if the rains stop. Also, the population growth in Austin area requires significantly more water.

The Houston/gulf coast area has had more rain than us. They should be in good shape for the rice farmers and duck hunters.

Dear Richard Hyde,

I am writing you to express my opinion in regards to the current on goings of the water supply management issue which is mainly disputed between the Texas highlands lakes and southern Texas rice farmers.

I AM IN SUPPORT OF KEEPING THE LAKES FULL!

This is a case of special interest taking advantage of the majority. Texas rice farmers used 2-3 times more water last year than the City of Austin for a non-indigenous crop that is only financially viable due to subsidies which negatively affect a much larger group (Austin). Simply put if you cannot make money growing rice while paying the same rate for water as everyone else and/or you don't have enough resources available to undergo the endeavor... it's not financially viable and should be ceased immediately. We can buy our rice from Asia... where it thrives and grows naturally.

It has been brought to my attention that the duck hunting and rice farming lobbyists are already trying to drain the highland lakes.

It should be noted that texas , despite all the rain, is still in drought.

Lake Buchanan is still well below drainage level.

These Lakes are our drinking water, and with the aquifers being drained at increasing rates , we need to secure our drinking water.

Releasing water from a lake that until last month has been at critical levels is a short term reaction to a long term situation we need to continue to monitor.

Our lakes have just now recover from the 2011 drainage for rice farming.

In the end, central texas farmers need to grow crops that are sustainable in our dry climate. rice of which is the worst thing that could be grown as it requires to be flooded.

Please deny their request as we continue to evaluate the DROUGHT status of texas.

Good morning,

It has come to my attention that there will be a hearing regarding the potential lift of this order which would, then, allow water to be released downstream for use by other industries.

I implore you to allow the gates at Mansfield Dam to remain closed. As a resident of the Lake Travis area and one who manages a business within the same area, I am very concerned that a loss of our recently gained water will have a negative impact our commerce and property values. As a result of the previous drought and the release of water which preceded it, many businesses that once thrived and were long-time partners have been forced to move or go out of business and tourism is considerably lower. Please allow the Lake Travis area to keep the water at current levels so that we can capitalize on these resources and continue the recovery of industry and businesses in our area.

Additionally, a representative from your organization was present at an economic forum in January of this year. It was publicly stated that any water recovered this year would be allowed to stay in the area and not sold to industries downstream. It would greatly reduce the trust and confidence of many if this statement were to be incorrect.

I'd like to add my name to the list of Austin-area residents who oppose releasing water downstream for agricultural or other non-emergency use at this time.

Though we've recently had an incredible boost to the storage in Lake Travis, Lake Buchanan is still only 52% full and a large section of the watershed is still classified as "abnormally dry". Until there is more evidence that the drought is really over I think it would be wise to be cautious with the water that we have.

I realize that managing the needs of the environment and the different groups demanding water in Texas is difficult and delicate - and I appreciate the work you're doing.

Subject: re: Lake Travis

Against sending water downstream for rice farming.

As a long time Lake Travis resident I think it's time we concern ourselves with conserving the water levels in Lake Travis for those who live in the area and those who work here and use Lake Travis. We can not afford to let the water just run downstream to fill up the rice fields of some LCRA directors property. There has been too much collusion and under handed dealings when it comes to allocating the limited resources that Lake Travis has. Due to the rising population in the area even greater demands have been put on the watershed which is Lake Travis. Like those two huger straws going to Cedar Park. Doesn't human consumption come before profits to the few who own rice farms. Should the lake have a higher normal level? Probably, based on new population data. But we can never tell when a flood will come and we can't see a drought coming either. The lake is just now coming back after years of drought and before we instantly drain it back down we need to decide what's more important, people or profits? I like rice, but I haven't seen a rice shortage since we've been in this drought, which tells me there are plenty of other rice producers elsewhere in the world. So rice supply hasn't been hurt by the drought, but lots of local businesses and local people have been hurt by the low lake. The rice farmers will just have to operate on the amount of water that is truly extra or change their chosen crop to one that demands less water or get it from another source. What about desalination we have plenty of water in the gulf can't they pump it up from there? When Lake Travis is over 681 in the summer then you can send the extra downstream, but we aren't there yet. There are some things we could do to help the level, like toilets that don't flush a gallon of clean drinkable water everytime someone urinates less than an once. Businesses and homes watering their yards while it's raining. Restaurants giving people a glass of water when they sit down then pouring it away when no one drinks it. Why shouldn't we ask if you want a glass of water. It's still free but you don't waste the water and the ice cubes which are made of water on people who don't want it. It's also less dishes to wash so that saves water too. How many millions of gallons of water are being wasted by old habits and bad technology? We don't even have a full bucket so lets not start emptying it already.

COMMENTS: I strongly support a continuation of the Emergency Order issued by the Executive Director (ED) on June 17, 2015, pursuant to Tex. Water Code § 11.139, to the Lower Colorado River Authority (LCRA) to amend its 2010 Water Management Plan (WMP), Permit No. 5838. The significant negative impact on financial and living conditions on those who live on and around the highland lakes is well documented. The fact that there are finally some inflows to the highland lakes that can positively improve both the financial and living conditions and the first thing that happens is the LCRA once again proposes to act in a way that completely disregards its responsibilities to serve the best interests of the highland lakes and those who live on and around them, is despicable as well as it shows the complete malfunction and lack of responsible oversight of government. If the TCEQ allows the exception for LCRA it will just add to why the citizens who live on and around the highland lakes distrust and abhor the TCEQ and the LCRA for failing us.

COMMENTS: If it weren't for 1 storm, Lake Travis would still be 50% full. Until we have a sustainable weather pattern and plan to better manage lake levels, I support a continuation of the Emergency Order issued by the Executive Director (ED) on June 17, 2015, pursuant to Tex. Water Code § 11.139, to the Lower Colorado River Authority (LCRA) to amend its 2010 Water Management Plan (WMP), Permit No. 5838. I follow the LCRA Hydromet almost daily. This years downstream flows are consistently a multiple of what is flowing into the Buchanan and Travis combined due to coastal weather patterns. Until the downstream reserve pool is built, which will capture that coastal rain, we need to better protect what we have in Buchanan and Travis. In many areas, farmers have to reconsider their crop based on weather or ground conditions...why are we still planting rice?! Thank you!

Further, our property values have suffered due to the extended drought and are just now becoming to a value near our taxed value. DO NOT do this CRIMINAL act and cause our residents to vacate due to the burden of high taxes and no amenities.

Another thing is that I have looked for "rice" to buy from Texas farmers and at HEB they sell no rice made in Texas. I wanted to support the farmers so they wouldn't have to take our water to grow rice that is not even sold in Austin, I could be wrong but just saying, that's just wrong. Thanks

COMMENTS: Please do not release 17 years of drinking water downstream like you did in 2011. Common sense must prevail now that the city of Austin has greatly increased it's population over the last decade. Security and clean water for any area should be the top priorities. As a veteran and small business owner in the Lake Travis area, we must figure out a better solution to this issue and not just release water like we have done in the past. We have paid dearly over the past 4 years and we hope that the right decision will be made this time around, unlike in 2011 when politics outranked the safety and security of the region.

COMMENTS: I can't believe there is even a consideration of sending all that water downstream. We are still not full and have only been here for one month. What if the drought continues and all that water is sent? Do you want to continue to hurt home values in the area and have a big part of the Austin area back down to dangerously low water? 1. Do not send water downstream. 2. If they want to farm rice, try Louisiana where they have plenty of swampy lands that might be more suitable for them. 3. They can try growing other useful crops. 4. Have area HOA's not water the common areas like they do. Steiner Ranch is guilty of 'watering the streets' day after day. They should be pulled back to water only a couple of times a week and have a rain sensor that will disable the watering times if it is moist and doesn't need the water. 5. Let's continue water sensible watering restrictions to help preserve current water levels. You, I, and everyone knows that sending water downstream in massive amounts is not good for us right now (or maybe ever). The population in Austin is quite a bit more than it was 10 years ago. We have increased water demand locally and the water should stay in the area.

COMMENTS: As a resident of Cedar Park, I also own a home on Hudson Bend. I'm appalled to think that after 4 severe drought years with our Lake Travis being 60' low at some points, that the LCRA would again let water out. The economy on the lake will drive jobs, and allow the lake community to once again flourish. Rather than taking our drinking/watering water (of which we are still under massive restrictions), why not build another southern reservoir to harness the flood waters from Bastrop, and like communities. Please don't release our water!

COMMENTS: I support a continuation of the Emergency Order issued by the Executive Director (ED) on June 17, 2015, pursuant to Tex. Water Code § 11.139, to the Lower Colorado River Authority (LCRA) to amend its 2010 Water Management Plan (WMP), Permit No. 5838. To release water downstream after what has happened with a near drought of record is completely irresponsible. This would clearly indicate to any and everyone that the LCRA has learned nothing from just a few years ago. Lake Travis is nearly full, and now is the best time to see if water conservation behavior changes have actually taken place! The best scenario would be to analyze usage and see what impact those measures as well as additional water spouts have had (see: City of Leander, et al) BEFORE releasing water. You are clearly not taking into account the new, additional municipalities that are now drawing water from Lake Travis. It will be too late to gauge the impact once you release the water and put us in a situation we only recently put behind us.

COMMENTS: As a PE in Texas and an international expert in irrigation, I understand no need to release any water afte July 1, 2015 for agricultural needs in 2015 from Lake Travis from Mansfield Dam to the LCRA. I'm in favor of maintaining any moratoriums in effect presently through the 2015 year in hopes Lake Travis might compelety fill. There have been substantial Colorado River inflows below Mansfield Dam in 2015 from storms to meet any LCRA water demands for the lower Colorado River users. Lake Travis is just "hovering" at average storage volumes currently. The municipal needs and industriy permits should be met through 2015 from Lake Travis. Lake Buchanan is far below average storage and its watershed continues to lag in runoff volumes needed to partially replenish the lake water storage above the conservation pool. Respectfully, Terry A. Howell, Sr., P.E. (Texas #43797), D.WRE Retired Laboratory Director, USDA-ARS, Bushland, Texas Fellow American Society of Agricultural and Biological Engineers Fellow American Sociey of Civil Engineers Fellow American Society of Agronomy Fellow Soil Science Society of America

COMMENTS: I strongly support a continuation of the Emergency Order issued by the Executive Director (ED) on June 17, 2015, pursuant to Tex. Water Code § 11.139, to the Lower Colorado River Authority (LCRA) to amend its 2010 Water Management Plan (WMP), Permit No. 5838. The significant negative impact on financial and living conditions on those who live on and around the highland lakes is well documented. The fact that there are finally some inflows to the highland lakes that can positively improve both the financial and living conditions and the first thing that happens is the LCRA once again proposes to act in a way that completely disregards its responsibilities to serve the best interests of the highland lakes and those who live on and around them, is despicable as well as it shows the complete malfunction and lack of responsible oversight of government. If the TCEQ allows the exception for LCRA it will will just add to why the citizens who live on and around the highland lakes distrust and abhor the TCEQ and the LCRA for failing us. Furthermore, The depletion of the Lake Travis portion of the watershed should be stopped at the level of 670 ft above sea level to maintain proper habitat for fish, clean drinking water (less bacteria and harmful minerals ppm), and allow for business ventures to recoup lost revenue do to drought stages.

It is grossly irresponsible to release water after we have been in a 4 year drought. Lake Travis is finally usuable by Austin residents - the rice farmers have had as much rain as us. They need to figure out a solutiont o collect their own rainfall I am tired of supporting farmers who do not produce product for human consumption, stockpile what they have and are subsidized!! Ridiculous

COMMENTS: Release water downstream AFTER 681 ft; the lake is full at that point. Current level of 670 ft is only normal and we have not hit the summer dry period in August. We still need to be cautious about our usage. Dam was built to retain water for a population far less numerous than exists now in this area.

COMMENTS: I strongly support a continuation of the Emergency Order issued by the Executive Director (ED) on June 17, 2015, pursuant to Tex. Water Code § 11.139, to the Lower Colorado River Authority (LCRA) to amend its 2010 Water Management Plan (WMP), Permit No. 5838. The significant negative impact on financial and living conditions on those who live on and around the highland lakes is well documented. The fact that there are finally some inflows to the highland lakes that can positively improve both the financial and living conditions and the first thing that happens is the LCRA once again proposes to act in a way that completely disregards its responsibilities to serve the best interests of the highland lakes and those who live on and around them, is despicable as well as it shows the complete malfunction and lack of responsible oversight of government. If the TCEQ allows the exception for LCRA it will will just add to why the citizens who live on and around the highland lakes distrust and abhor the TCEQ and the LCRA for failing us.

Water Code 11.139 to the Lower Colorado River Authority (LCRA) to amend its 2010 Water Management Plan (WMP), permit # 5838. Too many residents and business owners along Lake Travis and Highland Lakes have suffered severe financial loss over the last 4 years, to justify sending water to any other region, especially When Lake Buchanan is still only at 50% full. Rice is not a sustainable crop for Texas, it was a bad business decision and should not be allowed to continue to harm communities hundreds of miles away.

COMMENTS: NASA has accepted that climate change is real. The results is wider swings in temperatures and weather conditions. If you believed that the most recent drought was "severe", then we should expect that the next drought will be worse. Please do not waste any of the precious water that has re-filled Lake Travis and other lakes in the LCRA. Anyone from California will agree. If you squander our precious water, than no one will have any incentive to do anything to conserve what we have. Be a role model for all consumers.

COMMENTS: As a PE in Texas and an international expert in irrigation, I understand no need to release any water after July 1, 2015 for agricultural needs in 2015 from Lake Travis from Mansfield Dam to the LCRA. I'm in favor of maintaining any moratoriums in effect presently through the 2015 year in hopes Lake Travis might compelety fill. There have been substantial Colorado River inflows below Mansfield Dam in 2015 from storms to meet any LCRA water demands for the lower Colorado River users. Lake Travis is just "hovering" at average storage volumes currently. The municipal needs and industriy permits should be met through 2015 from Lake Travis. Lake Buchanan is far below average storage and its watershed continues to lag in runoff volumes needed to partially replenish the lake water storage above the conservation pool. COMMENTS: The continued release of water to an outdated system to pacify very few people doesn't make alot of sense as the Austin metro area has such a large growth in population it is going to take a flood every year just to keep up with the demand much less to release the water to a subsidized rice industry

COMMENTS: My husband and I have owned our home on Lake Travis since 1983. We understand that water is a resource that must be shared by all. We understand and support water releases for the health of the river and agriculture needs. However, we implore the TCEQ to ensure the LCRA practices responsible water management. In 2011, when the LCRA authorized 2 releases (Spring and Fall) of water to the rice farmers, the lake didn't recover until May 2015. Of course, like everyone who lives on the lake I love having the opportunity to swim and boat, but if the lake and water are not properly managed, the water required to support the rapidly growing central Texas population will be in danger. I implore the TCEQ and the LCRA to consider the increased population and be judicious in the amounts of water released downstream. Thank you so much for reading my comments. God Bless Texas!

COMMENTS: We absolutely do not want a repeat of 2011 when the special interests downstream including rice farmers and duck hunters were able to deplete the Highland Lakes of precious water reserves in the face of a prolonged drought. With the dramatic growth in the Austin area, greater water resources will be needed going forward. I suspect it will make far greater financial sense to preserve the water in our lakes rather than releasing reserve water downstream only to find the municipalities purchasing much more expensive water from less plentiful resources in the future.

COMMENTS: I would like to voice my opinion to Save our lake. The recent unprecedented rainfall has been a blessing to us and the lake is now beautiful again. Property values are going up and business that have been out of business from the last 4 year drought are starting to come back again. With the growing population especially near the lake we need this resource for our water supply. Hopefully there is a better way to resolve this problem with the duck hunters and rice farmers that opening the dam and taking our precious water. We all pray that you will not resort to opening the dam.

COMMENTS: As a long-time Austin resident, I strongly support the LCRA's emergency action request/ the TCEQ accepting this application to limit the release of recently restored lake water as if the drought will not return. I also favor water use plans that factor in the possibility of catastrophic drought reducing our highland lake levels going forward (IE conserve more water in lakes by default).

COMMENTS: I FULLY support a continuation of the Emergency Order issued by the Executive Director on June 17, 2015, pursuant toe Tex. Water Code 11.139, to the Lower Colorado River Authority to amend its 2010 water management plan, permit number 5838. Please allow our local reservoirs to more adequately recover before sending what little that has been gained downstream. A reliable and adequate source of water for 1,000,000+ Central Texans depend on it! Thank you for you consideration.

hasn't been back to normal for more than a month, and the fact there is already discussion to start using water at the alarming rate that got the lake so low is irresponsible.

COMMENTS: I support a continuation of the Emergency Order issued by the Executive Director (ED) on June 17, 2015, pursuant to Tex. Water Code § 11.139, to the Lower Colorado River Authority (LCRA) to amend its 2010 Water Management Plan (WMP), Permit No. 5838. IT IS MUCH TOO SOON TO DECLARE A END

TO THE DROUGHT. I encourage the Board to look at the facts, our recent history and to uphold the continuation of the Emergency Order.

COMMENTS: To whom this may concern: I write to you on behalf of myself as a private citizen of Travis County. In my opinion, we should be thankful and grateful for the recent May and June rainfall that has recharged our lakes and rivers. It had nothing to do with governmental planning or conservation, it just happened to rain in the right spot for the right period of time. Allowing this spectacular windfall of rain to flow downstream is not in the best interest of local users. We should be holding onto our lake water a little tighter, a little more wiser, a litter longer. I do not think our water should be given away so easily when it came to our city by environmental chance. If you give it away without a thought or a plan to replenish it all, then you shouldn't give it away at all. We have all looked into our lakes over the past five years and seen sand bars turn into islands full of bushes and small trees... is that your concept of planning? If so, then do not send our lake water away as that plan is not working well. While we have the water, let us be happy with it and keep it as long as we can. Without water, what do we have, memories of a lake? Our lake was at 34% full just a few weeks ago, please don't let it go back to that. The lake is all of ours, please take care of it.

COMMENTS: To whom it may concern: I am a lake resident and my husband and I have lived in Austin on the lake for 4 years now. We finally have water in our lake and it is so beautiful. Please do not allow the destruction of our lake again. Just seeing the lake come back to life with activity is amazing and not to mention all the businesses that where lost to the lowering of the lake. We take pride in living here in Austin because of Beautiful Lake Travis. Please see fit to leave it at its natural levels.

COMMENTS: I strongly support a continuation of the Emergency Order issued by the Executive Director (ED) on June 17, 2015, pursuant to Tex. Water Code § 11.139, to the Lower Colorado River Authority (LCRA) to amend its 2010 Water Management Plan (WMP), Permit No. 5838. The significant negative impact on financial and living conditions on those who live on and around the highland lakes is well documented. The fact that there are finally some inflows to the highland lakes that can positively improve both the financial and living conditions and the first thing that happens is the LCRA once again proposes to act in a way that completely disregards its responsibilities to serve the best interests of the highland lakes and those who live on and around them, is despicable as well as it shows the complete malfunction and lack of responsible oversight of government. If the TCEQ allows the exception for LCRA it will just add to why the citizens who live on and around the highland lakes distrust and abhor the TCEQ and the LCRA for failing us.

COMMENTS: Dear TCEQ- I just heard you are considering opening up Mansfield Dam to release water downstream. It is premature to even consider releasing water. It just got back to an acceptable level whereby people can once again use the lake for recreational purposes. I understand recreation was not the original and primary intent for the lake, but things change and evolve. The people who use this lake for recreational use must have a voice in this. Please vote NO to releasing water from Mansfield Dam. Thank you

We just are getting the water level on the lake to where it should be and now there is talk about releasing water and lowering the lake again. I can't believe this, so many businesses have been effected by the low water levels and now there is sign of picking back up and having business start to have income. I have a boat at one of the Marinas and has been moved around due to low water levels and now they have moved it back to the original place and we don't have to take shuttles, also noticed that they moved Johnny Finns back as well and am hoping that they will open soon, but with you all releasing water they might have to move it back out again and stay closed.

Water Code § 11.139, to the Lower Colorado River Authority (LCRA) to amend its 2010 Water Management Plan (WMP), Permit No. 5838. The impact felt by released waters is widespread. This is our drinking water, neighbors had to have water trucked into them. Home values plummeted, businesses closed, people lost jobs, the recreation was cut in half meaning monies were not being spent. The list goes on and on. Its a butterfly effect that is not to be taken lightly. And for what? Persons whom are already being subsidized by the government to sell water off as well as rice that is not even able to be sold to our community. The livelihood of our community is at stake. Lets hope all that has been lost was not in vain. Lets learn from our mistakes and forge onward.

COMMENTS: I support continuation of the permit WRPERM 5838 on Docket 2015-0817-WR to retain water in Lake Travis until such time as Lake Buchanan and Lake Travis are at a healthy full pool. We are still in a tenuous situation having just started to overcome record setting drought conditions. Thanks for your consideration of the many residential property owners on Lake Travis. Respectfully , Linda and Charles Koenig Water Code § 11.139, to the Lower Colorado River Authority (LCRA) to amend its 2010 Water Management Plan (WMP), Permit No. 5838 I don't understand how there could be a need to release any water after July 1, 2015 for agricultural needs in 2015 from Lake Travis from Mansfield Dam to the LCRA. I'm in favor of maintaining any moratoriums in effect presently through the 2015 year in hopes Lake Travis might compelety fill. There have been substantial Colorado River inflows below Mansfield Dam in 2015 from storms to meet any LCRA water demands for the lower Colorado River users. Lake Travis is just "hovering" at average storage volumes currently. Lake Buchanan is still far below average storage and its watershed continues to lag in runoff volumes needed to partially replenish the lake water storage above the conservation pool.

COMMENTS: People come to Austin looking for a good time to come to lake Travis. L CRA has managed to completely ruin the lake in a five-year span by making money off selling water instead of what they're supposed to be doing conserving water for Austin's public . This is an outrage and completely pathetic Texas has received more rain in all these dry parts of Texas and no water needs to be released or sold! We have to look to the future of like Travis and not be concerned about anybody else this is Austin's water and it's not for sale . You people need to get your head out of your asses and concentrate and focus on the ball .

COMMENTS: Before granting this permit I believe we need a management plan that limits drainage of the lake system for farming. It's obvious that the lake levels lowered much to far in recent years and we don't want a repeat of that playbook. What new assurances and "brakes" on the drainage will be enforced this time vs previous occurrences? The water is a shared resource and we cannot afford to spend end it all on irrigation. I would like to see the permit denied until such time as a robust plan for conservation can be reviewed and adopted. One that balances all interests in the lake system.
