Natural Outlook is the TCEQ's quarterly publication of environmental issues in Texas. Below is the Web version of the Fall 2002 issue for your viewing.

Fall 2002 Issue

Making Her Mark

Meet Margaret Hoffman, the TCEQ's new chief administrator. She's a legal eagle who knows the ins and outs of state and federal environmental programs.

The State of Galveston Bay

Can the fragile ecology of the bay system be preserved in the midst of growing demands on natural resources? The Galveston Bay Estuary Program assesses current conditions and ongoing problems.

Evaluating Seafood from the Bay

A good portion of shellfish and seafood consumed by Texans comes from Galveston Bay. How safe is it to eat those catches?

Sunset Implementation

Since the legislative session in 2001, the TCEQ has implemented or expanded a host of programs, many of which invite increased public participation.

Spreading the Compost Message

Compost is winning converts as the TCEQ helps train landscape and sports turf specialists on methods of conditioning the soil and safeguarding water quality.
