

Biography: Dr. William J. (Jim) Rogers

West Texas A&M University

Current Position

Dr. Rogers is the Associate Dean for Environmental Compliance, Health and Safety responsible for all aspects of student and research environmental compliance, health and safety and is also the Environmental Science Program Director at West Texas A&M University, with a research specialty in the area of ecological risk assessment and decision support modeling.

Prior Experience and Education

Dr. Rogers has Bachelors and Master Degrees in Biology from West Texas A&M University and a PhD in Wildlife and Fisheries Sciences from Texas A&M University. Dr. Rogers served as the Southwest Regional Coordinator on the Secretary of Interior's Task Force on Selenium and Other Toxic Substances in Irrigation Return Flows. He has over 35 years experience in environmental toxicology and environmental effects on terrestrial and aquatic systems. Dr. Rogers has also supported the United Nations, World Bank, Food and Agriculture Organization as well as many federal agencies on environmental risk issues.

Contact Information

Telephone: (806) 651-2581

E-mail: jrogers@wtamu.edu