

NOTICE:

On July 1st, 2008, the Texas Drinking Water certification program was superseded by the National Environmental Laboratory Accreditation Conference (NELAC) program.

Since the Drinking Water certification program has been closed, laboratories must now be accredited under the NELAC standard instead.

The list of laboratories currently accredited under NELAC can be found here:

List of NELAC laboratories with their Fields of Accreditation

Laboratories with an “X” under the Drinking Water column are accredited to perform analysis of Drinking Water samples.

You can view the exact methods and parameters for which they have been granted accreditation by clicking on each lab’s link in the far right column.

For any questions, you can contact the Laboratory Accreditation Program at (512) 239 – 3754.
